ADRIAN

Hope

Adrian Hope, born in 1903 in Morinville, Alberta, led a diverse and influential life, spanning roles from rancher to political leader. In 1932, he co-founded L'Association des Métis de l'Alberta et les Territoires du Nord-Ouest, a pivotal organization for Métis rights and advocacy, alongside notable figures such as Joseph Dion and Jim Brady. His contributions were instrumental in advancing the social and political status of the Métis community in Alberta.

"The government tries to say that this land is theirs. I don't think I've heard a bigger lie in all my life..."
